TK protective equipment – made by hockey players for hockey players!

Our TK family means a great deal to us. That's why we are deeply committed to making our protective gear as safe and reliable as possible. To guarantee maximum protection, all our products are extensively tested by independent institutes. Only after successfully passing all examinations and tests do they receive the CE mark. This ensures that every athlete can take the field with confidence in the quality and protective performance of our products.

CE Certification According to EN 13546

When a protective gear product is CE certified under the European Standard EN 13546, it means the equipment has undergone rigorous testing and meets the essential safety and performance requirements established by the European Union for field hockey protection. Specifically, EN 13546:2002+A1:2007 defines standards for protective clothing used by field hockey goalkeepers and field players, including protection for the hands, arms, chest, abdomen, legs, feet, and genital area.

CE certification according to this standard ensures that the gear provides proper ergonomics, fit, coverage, and impact protection, has passed defined durability and safety tests, and is safe for skin contact. It also confirms that manufacturers provide clear labeling and user information. This certification gives athletes and buyers the assurance that the gear complies with EU regulations and provides reliable protection during play.

Unlike other protective equipment, field-player penalty corner face protectors are not currently covered by the European Standard EN 13546, creating a gap in regulatory guidance. To address this, the International Hockey Federation (FIH) sponsored a research initiative at Loughborough University, which led to a published study now forming the basis of the FIH's current recommendations.

Based on this research, the FIH has established two performance categories for face masks:

Category 1:

Masks were tested by firing a hockey ball at a speed of 80 mph (128 km/h) directly at the mask. They met all criteria regarding fit, facial coverage, mechanical resistance, and impact protection. These masks are suitable for all levels of play, including elite competition.

Category 2:

Masks tested at 60 mph (96 km/h) also met all key performance criteria and are considered suitable for lower levels of play, such as junior hockey.

All masks awarded the "FIH Recommended" designation have successfully passed these rigorous tests and are produced by manufacturers participating in the FIH Quality Programme. Category 1 masks are also approved for Category 2 use, ensuring comprehensive protection across age groups and skill levels.
